

KATHY LOFTUS
National Energy Manager
Whole Foods Market

Kathy is National Energy Manager with Whole Foods Market. She coordinates strategic energy procurement and energy management and maintenance best practices. She was most recently Director of Business Development for EnerNOC, Inc. working with commercial and industrial national accounts, building beyond demand response to implement improved energy management strategies across their diverse facility portfolios. Prior to joining EnerNOC, Kathy spent eight years as Director of Energy & Environmental Management for Shaw's Supermarkets, Inc., where she was active in the EPA Energy Star and Green Power Partners Programs. She sat on the board of the (Massachusetts) Energy Consortium. Before Shaw's, Kathy worked for Eastern Utilities (acquired by National Grid) for six years. She holds a BS in Mechanical Engineering from Worcester Polytechnic Institute and is a Certified Energy Manager through the Association of Energy Engineers. She was a participant on the 2005 New England Roundtable on Federal Renewable Energy Policy and currently serves on the Advisory Committee of the Massachusetts Renewable Energy Trust.
